Interview Questions (highlighted):

Intro

We're working on creating a mobile carrier brand tailored to meet the needs of international Chinese students in the U.S. We'd love to hear your thoughts and feedback to help us improve the current design and service.

*Ask to record to transcribe after the interview

Customer Background

Background Questions:

- Can you tell me a bit about your journey to the U.S.?
(e.g., When did you come? What brought you here? How was the transition?)
 - Can you tell me a bit about your background - like when/why you came to the US & what you're doing now?
- What were some of the biggest challenges you faced when you first moved here?
- How did you find or connect with other international Chinese students or communities after moving here?

Mobile Carrier Background:

- Which mobile carrier are you currently using?
- Why did you choose this carrier? (e.g., cost, coverage, referral, etc.)
- What mobile carriers do you think are popular with international Chinese students and why?
- Have you ever switched mobile carriers? If yes, what made you switch? If not, why have you stayed with your current carrier?
- What is important in a mobile carrier for you? And what do you think is important in a mobile carrier for Chinese people that you know?
- What's something that would make you switch your mobile carrier today? (e.g. branding, price, deals, a referral from someone, etc.)
- In general, how do you feel about there being a mobile carrier brand that's targeted towards Chinese immigrants? Good/Bad/Neutral?

Now, I'd like you to imagine you're shopping for a new mobile plan. You've come across this landing page, and you're going to explore it. As you explore these websites, I'd love for you to share everything that comes to mind—what you like, what you dislike, or any thoughts or feelings you have while navigating the page. All of your impressions you have, no matter how small, will be incredibly valuable to us - the bad and the good.

After each landing pages:

Overall Feelings:

- How did the design of the page make you feel overall?
- What were the main things you liked about the design?
- What, if anything, did you dislike or think could be improved?

*Also show the different panda characters & ask for feedback on them

General:

Design/Features for Chinese Immigrants:

- How do you feel about Chinese elements in the design? Would you want to see more or less Chinese elements like language, images, memes, design themes, etc.
- Let's say you could imagine the perfect design for this brand for yourself and others in the international Chinese community
 - Are there any must-have design elements you would incorporate (e.g. a certain color theme, a certain vibe or personality, etc.?)
 - Are there any must-have product features or services you would incorporate (e.g. a specific type of service or customer support, or certain partnerships with other brands etc.)

Switching/Referral

- Is there any sort of feature or deal or something that you could think of that would make you think that this brand is "too good to pass up on. I need to switch."
- If you were to switch to this mobile carrier, would you just naturally recommend it to others in the international Chinese community? Or would you feel more encouraged to refer it if there were an incentive, like a referral program?
- If you were to share this brand with others, who would you share it with (e.g. friends, , colleagues, strangers, etc). And how would you share it (e.g. word of mouth, social media, or a specific app)

Final

- Have you changed how you feel about there being a mobile carrier brand that's targeted towards international Chinese students? Good/Bad/Neutral?
- We're looking for students to interview in the international Chinese student community, do you know of anyone? Offering credit
- Do you have any suggestions for conducting future interviews like this? E.g are there any types of questions I should ask or avoid - anything I could to make the interview more comfortable or relevant?
